

The Quran is not an inspired book from God, but it reveals many truths about Jesus that can serve as a candle to lead them to the Light of the world. When we focus on reading and studying the books of God (the four books Muslims believe are from God: The Torah, Psalms, Gospels, and the Quran), then we will have a lot in common with our Muslim brothers and sisters.

However, when we drift from studying the books of God to conversations about things like commentaries, rituals, and traditions, the farther we will become from our Muslim brothers and sisters. It isn't that these other conversations don't have value; it's just that to truly understand that Jesus is the straight path, we must stick to studying the books of God.